REPUBLICAN CLUB OF WESTERLY

Holds Annual Dinner on Thursday Evening—A Successful and Enthusiastic Gathering—$5,000 Damage Suit Against Town—Woman Fined for Assault—Circular from Assistant Postmaster Peale, of Norwich to Other A. P. M.'s

The contract has been awarded for the building of a mile-stretch of state road on what is known as the Shore road in the town of Westerly, which is to begin at the point where the Shore road connects with the Watch Hill road. The state board of public roads held a meeting Wednesday afternoon and the contract was awarded to John Bristow, his bid being $3,682.51. Walter S. Barker received the Middletown contract with a bid of 22 cents an hour for labor, 25 cents for single teams and 35 cents for double teams. A stretch in Burrillville went to Ames T. Bridge's Sons, whose bid was: Labor, 17 cents an hour, double teams, 14 cents an hour. This is a repairing proposition.

The lowest bidder for the West Greenwich road was the Rowe Contracting company of Brighton, Mass., $3,330.60. The same firm made like bid for the Exeter stretch of road, which was also the lowest bid. L. H. Callan of Bristol made the lowest bid, $3,325, for the Tiverton contract. These three contracts were not awarded, and are held for consideration.

Walter J. Kenyon, through Dixon & Rathbun, his attorneys, has brought suit against the town of Westerly to recover $5,000 damages, for injuries received by reason of a defective highway. The complaint alleges that the plaintiff was driving on the Potter Hill road, and in passing the automobile of Charles D. Chapman, the horse shied, went into a ditch at the side of the road and the injuries resulted. Mr. Kenyon's left leg was broken, he was also severely cut and bruised and permanently injured.

It is claimed that the ditch wherein Mr. Kenyon was injured is five feet below the level of the road and was not protected by a guard rail, but was hidden from view by a wild growth of brush. It is set forth that the absence of a guard rail made the highway defective and the town liable for damages.

W. J. Kenyon served Thursday upon James M. Pendleton, treasurer of the town of Westerly, and is returnable to the superior court for Washington county, November 12.

Ella Wheeler, a colored resident of Canochet, not the Sprague estate, was arraigned before Judge Oliver H.

Local Laconics.

Ex-Mayor and Mrs. Benjamin G. Armstrong were visitors in Westerly Thursday.

There is no outside sign of campaigning in Westerly for the state election next Tuesday.

The addition being built to the velvet mill plant in Stonington is to be utilized for the manufacture of silk fabrics.

Mrs. James F. Blair and son returned Thursday from Waterbury, where they visited Mrs. Blair's daughter, Mrs. Edgar Lamb.

Benjamin Tourtellot and family removed from York's corner, Thursday, to their recently purchased property in Pleasant street.

George D. Thompson and son-in-law, Julius (Gavitt), and wife of North Stonington, are on route for Lake Weir, Florida, where they will spend the winter.

George B. Utter and Clarence E. Roche were in Westerly at the annual dinner of the Young Men's Republican club in Providence, Wednesday evening.

Walter Tibbitts, professional polo player, a former resident of Westerly, and of the Providence team in the Williams in the Third district court at Westerly Thursday, charged with an assault upon Mallory O. Main, engineer of the Edwards Line company plant at Canochet, in the town of Hopkinton. There were no lawyers in the trial of the case, both complainant and accused notifying the court that they would get along without the aid or expense of lawyers.

The testimony showed that Mrs. Wheeler called at the engine room of the street car and struck Mr. Main, sending him against the main belt with force sufficient to slip it from the pulley and stop the motive power of the plant. She struck Mr. Main several times and was finally removed from the premises.

Mrs. Wheeler in defense stated that Main had "clipped" one of her children and that she was able to do the correcting without his assistance. She went to the line works, she said, and had a mix-up with Main, but she did not remember striking him.

Mrs. Wheeler was found guilty of the charge and she paid a fine of $5 and costs, a total of $17.50.

There is a report that there is to be prosecution of the alleged illegal sale of liquor by private individuals, who are not satisfied with what is being accomplished by the police authorities in that respect in the confines of the town of Westerly. It is said that a local lawyer has been retained as special prosecutor, and that the outside expenses will be borne by a semi-official organized body formed for the purpose of bettering the moral welfare of the town.

The annual dinner of the Young Men's Republican club of Westerly, in the Dixon house Thursday night was a pleasant event and largely attended not only by members of the club but by many other republican voters of the town and some from other places.

The large dining hall was decorated with the national and state flag and the tables were beautified with plants and cut flowers. Landlord Segar furnished a turkey supper and the service was in every way satisfactory.

The event was arranged by the officers of the club, who are: George B. Utter, president; Alexander Ferguson, Robert G. Thackeray, vice presidents; John J. Dunn, secretary; Lewis Stanton, treasurer; Edward J. Burdick, Carl Miller, Arthur L. Perry, Louis J. Renter, executive committee.

Judge Edward M. Colebrook of Westerly was toastmaster, and the speakers were Percy W. Gardner of Providence, president of the State League of Republican Clubs; Attorney Samuel H. Davis of Westerly; Richard V. Jennings of Cranston, a member of the state central committee, and ex-Gov. George H. Utter of Westerly. Excellent music was furnished by the Ideal orchestra.

Just prior to the dinner there was a business meeting of the club, the secretary and treasurer making satisfactory reports, and the old board of officers being re-elected.

At 8:15 dinner was served and when the tables were cleared President George B. Utter gave the opening address, stating the retrospective and prospective work of the club.

He introduced Judge Burke as toastmaster. He made a speech that teemed with eloquence and praise for the republican party, and paid a glowing tribute to Governor Utter as the leading republican and the best political statesman in the state. He introduced Tracy W. Gardner of Providence who after lauding the good work of the Westerly club advocated continued fealty to party and urged every republican in Westerly to vote for the three constitutional amendments.

Samuel H. Davis was the next speaker, giving an able address, taking in detail the evolution of the republican party. He said it was perhaps well for young men of a patriotic strain to say they would die for their country, but he believed a better way would be to live for their country and give to the town, state and country the best that was in them.

Richard W. Jennings spoke next, on general state issues, declining them in detail, and urged the voters of Westerly to increase their usually large majority. He rebuked the democratic party in the state for its inconsistency.

Ex-Governor Utter was the last speaker and said he was glad of the opportunity to tell the club members he hoped to be present. He said that a member of his family, the president of the club, had asked him to come just to all in. The governor said as he wished 170 points and the member of his family weighed 180, he felt overpowered. The governor made a characteristic and able speech. He knew all the candidates intimately and lauded each and every one of the publicans of Westerly to make the majority large enough to elect all republican candidates. He explained the trio amendment. He closed by urging the club members to show the good that was in them.

It was past midnight when the meeting was adjourned.

Arthur Peale of Norwich, delegate from Connecticut to the national convention of assistant postmasters, held in Indianapolis, has sent circular letters to the assistant postmasters of Connecticut, and invited the president, Postmaster Charles J. Butler of Westerly, president of the Rhode Island association.

A number of resolutions to the post-office department were passed, but the one urging the extension of the classified list to assistant postmasters was paramount. When all were agreed that action should be taken, the resolution was adopted but this matter should wait until classification succeeds.

The town of Meriden previously had offered the site to the tuberculosis commission subject to conditions which it was not within the authority of the commission to accept. As the site is showing satisfactory results, the town is now offering the site for the tuberculosis sanatorium in New Haven county provided that some additional neighboring land can be procured.

The commission, however, according to a statement of Dr. Foster, who spent Monday in Hartford for the purpose of straightening these matters out, will have the deal completed in a few days.

UNCONDITIONAL GIFT.

Tuberculosis Commission Can Accept Underbill from Meriden.

At a special town meeting in Meriden Tuesday evening a resolution was adopted giving an unconditional transfer of a tract of land and buildings to the state for the proposed new tuberculosis sanatorium to be built and operated by the state.

The champion Westerly baseball team entertained its own membership and a number of friends at the annual supper in Caledonia hall Thursday night. After the supper there was general glorification in the rooms of the Cycle club.

Postmasters Courtland C. Potter of Mystic and Nathaniel P. Noyes of Stonington were in Westerly Thursday morning, en route to Norwich, where they were the guests of Congressman Higgins at a complimentary dinner at the Wauregan house.

There was an old-fashioned husking bee at the S. A. Congdon place in the east section of the town of Westerly, Wednesday night. Fifty bushels of corn were husked, and there was no scarcity of red ears, as some were colored for the occasion.

Samuel Given, George Ledward and Frank Dutton, representatives of the Young Men's club of the Broad Street Christian church, Westerly, went to Stonington, Thursday night, and debated with the Young Men's club of the Baptist church of that place, the question: Resolved, That Women Should Have the Right of Suffrage. No decision was given. Besides the debaters a large party went from Westerly and all were hospitably entertained.
